National Steinbeck Center. Showcasing the rich agricultural heritage and history of Monterey County, the National Steinbeck Center opens its long-awaited Valley of the World History and Education Center September 1, 2003. The 8,000 square-foot addition will provide an overview of the agricultural industry from “field to feast.” Visit a produce market in That’s Where the Money Goes, experience a day in the life of a trucker in a life-size semi cab at Take the Long Haul, and design your own crate label in Delivering the Goods. Like the John Steinbeck exhibition hall, the Valley of the World wing will be a multi-media experience with exhibit text in both English and Spanish.
